From March 25 to April 19, 2025, the Pictor Gallery, 547 West 27th Street, presents the exhibition SYDNEY DRUM DIGITAL/PAINTING. This exhibition features her latest 6 large paintings on linen and 6 smaller paintings on paper. The large paintings, using oil and digital media, explore the intersections of painting, digital media, and photography. Some elements are hand-painted (a labor-intensive, low-tech method); others use digital technology to explore how it has changed the way we view the world around us (an emphatically high-tech process). Abstraction and her interest in color link her large paintings with her smaller abstract paintings on paper. These works use thin white lines to grid vivid vertical bands of color. Michaël Amy, a New York critic, noted in his exhibition essay that “Sydney Drum has made a distinctive pictorial format, imagery, combination of techniques, and style her own.” Gerrit Henry, another New York critic, wrote in an Art in America review of her work that Drum mixes up all kinds of esthetic impulses, and handles color with unswerving confidence. Drum’s artworks have been extensively exhibited in the U.S., Canada, and Europe and are represented in numerous public collections, including the Museum of Modern Art, New York.
